Description:	KQEMU is a full graphical front-end for QEMU. Together, KQEMU and QEMU allow you easily configure and run a "virtual PC," mount disk images, configure networking, and create "droplet" scripts to run the emulated environment again in the future. KQEMU provides a GUI interface for running PC emulation similar in intent to Virtual PC/VMWare. Written in Kommander, it also serves as a good example of RAD development in Linux.

GENERAL PUBLIC LICENSE TO COPY

1. You may copy and distribute verbatim copies of this source file as you receive it, in any medium, provided that you conspicuously and appropriately publish on each copy a valid copyright notice "Copyright (C) 1986 Richard M. Stallman"; and include following the copyright notice a verbatim copy of the above disclaimer of warranty and of this License.

2. You may modify your copy or copies of this source file or any portion of it, and copy and distribute such modifications under the terms of Paragraph 1 above, provided that you also do the following:

a) cause the modified files to carry prominent notices stating that you changed the files and the date of any change; and

b) cause the whole of any work that you distribute or publish, that in whole or in part contains or is a derivative of this program or any part thereof, to be licensed at no charge to all third parties on terms identical to those contained in this License Agreement (except that you may choose to grant more extensive warranty protection to some or all third parties, at your option).

c) You may charge a distribution fee for the physical act of transferring a copy, and you may at your option offer warranty protection in exchange for a fee.

Mere aggregation of another unrelated program with this program (or its derivative) on a volume of a storage or distribution medium does not bring the other program under the scope of these terms.

3. You may copy and distribute this program (or a portion or derivative of it, under Paragraph 2) in object code or executable form under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above provided that you also do one of the following:

a) accompany it with the complete corresponding machine-readable source code, which must be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,

b) accompany it with a written offer, valid for at least three years, to give any third party free (except for a nominal shipping charge) a complete machine-readable copy of the corresponding source code, to be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,

c) accompany it with the information you received as to where the corresponding source code may be obtained. (This alternative is allowed only for noncommercial distribution and only if you received the program in object code or executable form alone.)

For an executable file, complete source code means all the source code for all modules it contains; but, as a special exception, it need not include

source code for modules which are standard libraries that accompany the operating system on which the executable file runs.

4. You may not copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer this program except as expressly provided under this License Agreement. Any attempt otherwise to copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer this program is void and your rights to use the program under this License agreement shall be automatically terminated. However, parties who have received computer software programs from you with this License Agreement will not have their licenses terminated so long as such parties remain in full compliance.

5. If you wish to incorporate parts of this program into other free programs whose distribution conditions are different, write to the Free Software Foundation at 675 Mass Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139. We have not yet worked out a simple rule that can be stated here, but we will often permit this. We will be guided by the two goals of preserving the free status of all derivatives of our free software and of promoting the sharing and reuse of software.

In other words, you are welcome to use, share and improve this program. You are forbidden to forbid anyone else to use, share and improve what you give them. Help stamp out software-hoarding!

 The following points clarify the QEMU license:
 1) QEMU as a whole is released under the GNU General Public License

2) Parts of QEMU have specific licenses which are compatible with the GNU General Public License. Hence each source file contains its own licensing information. In particular, the QEMU virtual CPU core library (libqemu.a) is released under the GNU Lesser General Public License.

 Slirp was written by Danny Gasparovski. Copyright (c), 1995,1996 All Rights Reserved.

Slirp is maintained by Kelly Price <tygris+slirp@erols.com> Slirp is free software; "free" as in you don't have to pay for it, and you are free to do whatever you want with it. I do not accept any donations, monetary or otherwise, for Slirp. Instead, I would ask you to pass this potential donation to your favorite charity. In fact, I encourage everyone who finds Slirp useful to make a small donation to their favorite charity (for example, GreenPeace). This is not a requirement, but a suggestion from someone who highly values the service they provide.

The copyright terms and conditions:
Copyright (c) 1995,1996 Danny Gasparovski. All rights reserved.

Redistribution and use in source and binary forms, with or without modification, are permitted provided that the following conditions are met:

1. Redistributions of source code must retain the above copyright notice, this list of conditions and the following disclaimer.
2. Redistributions in binary form must reproduce the above copyright notice, this list of conditions and the following disclaimer in the documentation and/or other materials provided with the distribution.
3. All advertising materials mentioning features or use of this software must display the following acknowledgment: This product includes software developed by Danny Gasparovski.

THIS SOFTWARE IS PROVIDED "AS IS" AND ANY EXPRESS OR IMPLIED WARRANTIES, INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, THE IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY AND FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE ARE DISCLAIMED.

IN NO EVENT SHALL DANNY GASPAROVSKI OR CONTRIBUTORS BE LIABLE FOR ANY DIRECT, INDIRECT, INCIDENTAL, SPECIAL, EXEMPLARY, OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES (INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, PROCUREMENT OF SUBSTITUTE GOODS OR SERVICES; LOSS OF USE, DATA, OR PROFITS; OR BUSINESS INTERRUPTION) HOWEVER CAUSED AND ON ANY THEORY OF LIABILITY, WHETHER IN CONTRACT, STRICT LIABILITY, OR TORT (INCLUDING NEGLIGENCE OR OTHERWISE) ARISING IN ANY WAY OUT OF THE USE OF THIS SOFTWARE, EVEN IF ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

This basically means you can do anything you want with the software, except 1) call it your own, and 2) claim warranty on it. There is no warranty for this software. None. Nada. If you lose a million dollars while using Slirp, that's your loss not mine. So, USE AT YOUR OWN RISK! If these conditions cannot be met due to legal restrictions (E.g. where it is against the law to give out Software without warranty), you must cease using the software and delete all copies you have.

Slirp uses code that is copyrighted by the following people/organizations: Juha Pirkola, Gregory M. Christy, The Regents of the University of California, Carnegie Mellon University, The Australian National University, RSA Data Security, Inc.

The following points clarify the QEMU license:

- 1) QEMU as a whole is released under the GNU General Public License
- 2) Parts of QEMU have specific licenses which are compatible with the GNU General Public License. Hence each source file contains its own licensing information. In particular, the QEMU virtual CPU core library (libqemu.a) is released under the GNU Lesser General Public License. Many hardware device emulation sources are released under the BSD license.
- 3) The Tiny Code Generator (TCG) is released under the BSD license (see license headers in files).
- 4) QEMU is a trademark of Fabrice Bellard.

Slirp was written by Danny Gasparovski.

Copyright (c), 1995,1996 All Rights Reserved.

Slirp is maintained by Kelly Price <tygris+slirp@erols.com>

Slirp is free software; "free" as in you don't have to pay for it, and you are free to do whatever you want with it. I do not accept any donations, monetary or otherwise, for Slirp. Instead, I would ask you to pass this potential donation to your favorite charity. In fact, I encourage everyone who finds Slirp useful to make a small donation to their favorite charity (for example, GreenPeace). This is not a requirement, but a suggestion from someone who highly values the service they provide.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system or board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

EXEMPLARY, OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES (INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, PROCUREMENT OF SUBSTITUTE GOODS OR SERVICES; LOSS OF USE, DATA, OR PROFITS; OR BUSINESS INTERRUPTION) HOWEVER CAUSED AND ON ANY THEORY OF LIABILITY, WHETHER IN CONTRACT, STRICT LIABILITY, OR TORT (INCLUDING NEGLIGENCE OR OTHERWISE) ARISING IN ANY WAY OUT OF THE USE OF THIS SOFTWARE, EVEN IF ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

This basically means you can do anything you want with the software, except

1) call it your own, and 2) claim warranty on it. There is no warranty for this software. None. Nada. If you lose a million dollars while using Slirp, that's your loss not mine. So, USE AT YOUR OWN RISK!

If these conditions cannot be met due to legal restrictions (E.g. where it is against the law to give out Software without warranty), you must cease using the software and delete all copies you have.

This is D3DES (V5.09) by Richard Outerbridge with the double and triple-length support removed for use in VNC. Also the bytebit[] array has been reversed so that the most significant bit in each byte of the key is ignored, not the least significant.

Software: lame
Version: 3.97-6
File or Package: lame-3.97-6.lvn8.src.rpm
OSI Licenses: GPLv2, GPLv2+ w/exception, LGPLv2+, LGPLv2.1+, MIT/X11, BSDv2, zlib/libpng
Other Licenses: Custom
URL: http://livna-dl.reloumirrors.net/fedora/9/SRPMS/lame-3.97-6.lvn8.src.rpm
Group: System Environment/Libraries
Description: LAME MP3 encoding library. LAME is an open source application used to encode audio into the MP3 file format. The name LAME is a recursive acronym for LAME Ain't an MP3 Encoder, reflecting LAME's early history when it was not actually an encoder, but merely a set of patches against the freely available ISO demonstration source code. The ISO code had a restrictive license but was available without charge. In May 2000, the LAME project reimplemented the last of the ISO source code, and thus LAME was then a totally new implementation — compiling recent versions of LAME no longer requires the ISO source code. As recent LAME releases are no longer a patch against ISO encoder code, LAME is now itself an MP3 encoder; the LAME acronym has become a misnomer.
Common Usage: Library
Package Size: 8.6 MB
Folders / Files: 20 / 300
Source Path: wrlinux-3.0/layers/wrll-wrlinux/packages

Can I use LAME in my commercial program?
Yes, you can, under the restrictions of the LGPL. The easiest way to do this is to:

1. Link to LAME as separate library (libmp3lame.a on unix or lame_enc.dll on windows)
2. Fully acknowledge that you are using LAME, and give a link to our web site, www.mp3dev.org
3. If you make modifications to LAME, you must release these these modifications back to the LAME project, under the LGPL.

IMPORTANT NOTE - The decoding functions provided in LAME use the mpglib decoding engine which is under the GPL. They may not be used by any program not released under the GPL unless you obtain such permission from the MPG123 project (www.mpg123.de).

fft(fz,n); Does a hartley transform of "n" points in the array "fz". NOTE: This routine uses at least 2 patented algorithms, and may be under the restrictions of a bunch of different organizations. Although I wrote it completely myself; it is kind of a derivative of a routine I once authored and released under the GPL, so it may fall under the free software foundation's restrictions; it was worked on as a Stanford Univ project, so they claim some rights to it; it was further optimized at work here, so I think this company claims parts of it. The patents are held by R. Bracewell (the FHT algorithm) and O. Buneman (the trig generator), both at Stanford Univ. If it were up to me, I'd say go do whatever you want with it; but it would be polite to give credit to the following people if you use this anywhere:

Euler - probable inventor of the fourier transform.
Gauss - probable inventor of the FFT.
Hartley - probable inventor of the hartley transform.
Buneman - for a really cool trig generator
Mayer(me) - for authoring this particular version and including all the optimizations in one package.
Thanks, Ron Mayer; mayer@acuson.com

Beware that some of this code is subtly aware of the way operator regular-expression syntax might require a total rethink. NOTE: this code has been altered slightly for use in Tcl. Slightly modified by David MacKenzie to undo most of the changes for TCL.

Description:	Libaio is an event-driven programming environment intended for modern CMPs. The interface to the library, although similar to some existing event-driven libraries, is new, relatively untried, and still a work in progress. Unlike the SMP version of libasynch, libaio makes concurrency explicit through barriers and locks and sports a variety of more sophisticated schedulers. Libaio depends upon the 9unix libraries, which provide a consistent, portable, Unix-like programming interface inspired by Plan 9 and upon config for configuration and build management.

From: libatomic_ops-1.2/libatomic_ops-1.2/doc/license.txt
Our intent is to make it easy to use libatomic_ops, in both free and proprietary software. Hence most code that we expect to be linked into a client application is covered by an MIT-style license. A few library routines are covered by the GNU General Public License. These are put into a separate library, libatomic_ops_gpl.a. The low-level part of the library is mostly covered by the following license: Copyright (c) ...

Permission is hereby granted, free of charge, to any person obtaining a copy of this software and associated documentation files (the "Software"), to deal in the Software without restriction, including without limitation the rights to use, copy, modify, merge, publish, distribute, sublicense, and/or sell copies of the Software, and to permit persons to whom the Software is furnished to do so, subject to the following conditions: The above copyright notice and this permission notice shall be included in all copies or substantial portions of the Software.

THE SOFTWARE IS PROVIDED "AS IS", WITHOUT WARRANTY OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO THE WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE AND NONINFRINGEMENT.

IN NO EVENT SHALL THE AUTHORS OR COPYRIGHT HOLDERS BE LIABLE FOR ANY CLAIM, DAMAGES OR OTHER LIABILITY, WHETHER IN AN ACTION OF CONTRACT, TORT OR OTHERWISE, ARISING FROM, OUT OF OR IN CONNECTION WITH THE SOFTWARE OR THE USE OR OTHER DEALINGS IN THE SOFTWARE.

A few files in the sysdeps directory were inherited in part from the Boehm-Demers-Weiser conservative garbage collector, and are covered by its license, which is similar in spirit:

Copyright (c)

THIS MATERIAL IS PROVIDED AS IS, WITH ABSOLUTELY NO WARRANTY EXPRESSED OR IMPLIED. ANY USE IS AT YOUR OWN RISK.

Permission is hereby granted to use or copy this program for any purpose, provided the above notices are retained on all copies.

document version 1.4

Permission to modify the code and to distribute modified code is granted, provided the above notices are retained, and a notice that the code was modified is included with the above copyright notice.

A few files are covered by the GNU General Public License. (See file "COPYING".) This applies only to test code, sample applications, and the libatomic_ops_gpl portion of the library. Thus libatomic_ops_gpl should generally not be linked into proprietary code. (This distinction was motivated by patent considerations.)

It is possible that the license of the GPL pieces may be changed for future versions to make them more consistent with the rest of the package. If you submit patches, and have strong preferences about licensing, please express them.

The following function was extracted from RFC 1952 by Simon Josefsson, for the Shishi project, and modified to be compatible with the modified CRC-32 used by RFC 1510, and subsequently modified for GNU Libgcrypt to allow it to be used for calculating both unmodified CRC-32 and modified CRC-32 values.

Hi,

As of now libgcrypt is GPL under Windows due to that module and some people would really like to see it under LGPL too. Can you do such a license change to LGPL version 2? Note that LGPL give the user the option to relicense it under GPL, so the change would be pretty easy and backward compatible.

Sure. I assumed that since GPG was GPLd, you'd prefer the GPL for the entropy code as well, but Ian asked for LGPL as an option so as of the next release I'll have LGPL in there. You can consider it to be retroactive, so your current version will be LGPLd as well.

document version 1.4

Peter.

libgcrypt - The GNU crypto library Version 1.4.0

Copyright 2000, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2007 Free Software Foundation, Inc.

This file is free software; as a special exception the author gives unlimited permission to copy and/or distribute it, with or without modifications, as long as this notice is preserved.

This file is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY, to the extent permitted by law; without even the implied warranty of MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.

Overview - Libgcrypt is a general purpose crypto library based on the code used in GnuPG. Libgcrypt depends on the library 'libgpg-error', which must be installed correctly before Libgcrypt is to be built. Libgcrypt is distributed under the LGPL, see the section "License" below for details.

License - The library is distributed under the terms of the GNU Lesser General Public License (LGPL); see the file COPYING.LIB for the actual terms. The helper programs (gcrytrnd and getrandom) as well as the documentation are distributed under the terms of the GNU General Public License (GPL); see the file COPYING for the actual terms.

This library used to be available under the GPL - this was changed with version 1.1.7 with the rationale that there are now many free crypto libraries available and many of them come with capabilities similar to Libcrypt. We decided that to foster the use of cryptography in Free Software an LGPLed library would make more sense because it avoids problems due to license incompatibilities between some Free Software licenses and the GPL.

Please note that in many cases it is better for a library to be licensed under the GPL, so that it provides an advantage for free software projects. The Lesser GPL is so named because it does less to protect the freedom of the users of the code that it covers. See <http://www.gnu.org/philosophy/why-not-lgpl.html> for more explanation.

This file is Free Software; as a special exception the authors gives unlimited permission to copy and/or distribute it, with or without modifications, as long as this notice is preserved.

For conditions of the whole package, please see the file COPYING. This file is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY, to the extent permitted by law; without even the implied warranty of MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.

Description: The libglade library allows you to load glade interface files in a program at runtime. It doesn't require GLADE to be used, but GLADE is by far the easiest way to create the interface files. Libglade uses the XML file format used by the GLADE user interface builder GLADE, so libglade acts as an alternative to GLADE's code generation approach. Libglade also provides a simple interface for connecting handlers to the various signals in the interface (on platforms where the gmodule library works correctly, it is possible to connect all the handlers with a single function call). Once the interface has been instantiated, libglade gives no overhead, so other than the short initial interface loading time, there is no performance tradeoff.

This program is free software; you can redistribute it and/or modify it under the terms of the GNU General Public License as published by the Free Software Foundation; either version 2 of the License, or (at your option) any later version.

This program is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY; without even the implied warranty of MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE. See the GNU General Public License for more details.

You should have received a copy of the GNU General Public License along with this program; if not, write to the Free Software Foundation, Inc., 59 Temple Place, Suite 330, Boston, MA 02111-1307.

As a special exception, g10 Code GmbH gives unlimited permission to copy, distribute and modify the lisp source files that are the output of mkerrcodes.awk. You need not follow the terms of the GNU General Public License when using or distributing such scripts, even though portions of the text of mkerrcodes.awk appear in them. The GNU General Public License (GPL) does govern all other use of the material that constitutes the mkerrcodes.awk program.

Certain portions of the mkerrcodes.awk source text are designed to be copied (in certain cases, depending on the input) into the output of mkerrcodes.awk. We call these the "data" portions. The rest of the mkerrcodes.awk source text consists of comments plus executable code that decides which of the data portions to output in any given case. We call these comments and executable code the "non-data" portions. mkerrcodes.awk never copies any of the non-data portions into its output.

This special exception to the GPL applies to versions of mkerrcodes.awk released by g10 Code GmbH. When you make and distribute a modified version of mkerrcodes.awk, you may extend this special exception to the GPL to apply to your modified version as well, unless your modified version has the potential to copy into its output some of the text that was the non-data portion of the version that you started with. (In other words, unless your change moves or copies text from the non-data portions to the data portions.) If your modification has such potential, you must delete any notice of this special exception to the GPL from your modified version.

License below is copied from <<http://www.unicode.org/copyright.html>>, last updated 7 July 2004, and claims to apply to all Unicode versions.

According to a post on emacs-devel,

<<http://lists.gnu.org/archive/html/emacs-devel/2004-04/msg00036.html>>, RMS believe it is a free license: This is a free license, and even compatible with the GPL (if that ever matters). Yes, we can use it now.

This distribution contains the sixth public release of the Independent JPEG Group's free JPEG software. You are welcome to redistribute this software and to use it for any purpose, subject to the conditions under LEGAL ISSUES, below. Serious users of this software (particularly those incorporating it into larger programs) should contact IJG at jpeg-info@uunet.uu.net to be added to our electronic mailing list. Mailing list members are notified of updates and have a chance to participate in technical discussions, etc.

This software is the work of Tom Lane, Philip Gladstone, Jim Boucher, Lee Crocker, Julian Minguillon, Luis Ortiz, George Phillips, Davide Rossi, Guido Vollbeding, Ge' Weijers, and other members of the Independent JPEG Group. IJG is not affiliated with the official ISO JPEG standards committee.

LEGAL ISSUES - In plain English:

1. We don't promise that this software works. (But if you find any bugs, please let us know!)
2. You can use this software for whatever you want. You don't have to pay us.
3. You may not pretend that you wrote this software. If you use it in a program, you must acknowledge somewhere in your documentation that you've used the IJG code.

In legalese:

The authors make NO WARRANTY or representation, either express or implied, with respect to this software, its quality, accuracy, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. This software is provided "AS IS", and you, its user, assume the entire risk as to its quality and accuracy.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system or board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

This software is copyright (C) 1991-1998, Thomas G. Lane. All Rights Reserved except as specified below.

Permission is hereby granted to use, copy, modify, and distribute this software (or portions thereof) for any purpose, without fee, subject to these conditions:

(1) If any part of the source code for this software is distributed, then this README file must be included, with this copyright and no-warranty notice unaltered; and any additions, deletions, or changes to the original files must be clearly indicated in accompanying documentation.

(2) If only executable code is distributed, then the accompanying documentation must state that "this software is based in part on the work of the Independent JPEG Group".

(3) Permission for use of this software is granted only if the user accepts full responsibility for any undesirable consequences; the authors accept NO LIABILITY for damages of any kind.

These conditions apply to any software derived from or based on the IJG code, not just to the unmodified library. If you use our work, you ought to acknowledge us.

Permission is NOT granted for the use of any IJG author's name or company name in advertising or publicity relating to this software or products derived from it. This software may be referred to only as "the Independent JPEG Group's software".

We specifically permit and encourage the use of this software as the basis of commercial products, provided that all warranty or liability claims are assumed by the product vendor.

ansi2knr.c is included in this distribution by permission of L. Peter Deutsch, sole proprietor of its copyright holder, Aladdin Enterprises of Menlo Park, CA. ansi2knr.c is NOT covered by the above copyright and conditions, but instead by the usual distribution terms of the Free Software Foundation; principally, that you must include source code if you redistribute it. (See the file ansi2knr.c for full details.) However, since ansi2knr.c is not needed as part of any program generated from the IJG code, this does not limit you more than the foregoing paragraphs do.

The Unix configuration script "configure" was produced with GNU Autoconf. It is copyright by the Free Software Foundation but is freely distributable.

The same holds for its supporting scripts (config.guess, config.sub, ltconfig, ltmain.sh). Another support script, install-sh, is copyright by M.I.T. but is also freely distributable.

It appears that the arithmetic coding option of the JPEG spec is covered by patents owned by IBM, AT&T, and Mitsubishi. Hence arithmetic coding cannot legally be used without obtaining one or more licenses. For this reason, support for arithmetic coding has been removed from the free JPEG software. (Since arithmetic coding provides only a marginal gain over the unpatented Huffman mode, it is unlikely that very many implementations will support it.) So far as we are aware, there are no patent restrictions on the remaining code.

The IJG distribution formerly included code to read and write GIF files. To avoid entanglement with the Unisys LZW patent, GIF reading support has been removed altogether, and the GIF writer has been simplified to produce "uncompressed GIFs". This technique does not use the LZW algorithm; the resulting GIF files are larger than usual, but are readable by all standard GIF decoders.

We are required to state that "The Graphics Interchange Format(c) is the Copyright property of CompuServe Incorporated. GIF(sm) is a Service Mark property of CompuServe Incorporated."

ansi2knr is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY. No author or distributor accepts responsibility to anyone for the consequences of using it or for whether it serves any particular purpose or works at all, unless he says so in writing. Refer to the GNU General Public License (the "GPL") for full details.

Everyone is granted permission to copy, modify and redistribute ansi2knr, but only under the conditions described in the GPL. A copy of this license is supposed to have been given to you along with ansi2knr so you can know your rights and responsibilities. It should be in a file named COPYLEFT. [In the IJG distribution, the GPL appears below, not in a separate file.] Among other things, the copyright notice and this notice must be preserved on all copies.

We explicitly state here what we believe is already implied by the GPL: if the ansi2knr program is distributed as a separate set of sources and a separate executable file which are aggregated on a storage medium together with another program, this in itself does not bring the other program under the GPL, nor does the mere fact that such a program or the procedures for constructing it invoke the ansi2knr executable bring any other part of the program under the GPL.

These terms do NOT apply to the JPEG software itself; see README GHOSTSCRIPT GENERAL PUBLIC LICENSE
(Clarified 11 Feb 1988)

Copyright (C) 1988 Richard M. Stallman

Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies of this license, but changing it is not allowed. You can also use this wording to make the terms for other programs.

The license agreements of most software companies keep you at the mercy of those companies. By contrast, our general public license is intended to give everyone the right to share Ghostscript. To make sure that you get the rights we want you to have, we need to make restrictions that forbid anyone to deny you these rights or to ask you to surrender the rights. Hence this license agreement.

Specifically, we want to make sure that you have the right to give away copies of Ghostscript, that you receive source code or else can get it if you want it, that you can change Ghostscript or use pieces of it in new free programs, and that you know you can do these things.

To make sure that everyone has such rights, we have to forbid you to deprive anyone else of these rights. For example, if you distribute copies of Ghostscript, you must give the recipients all the rights that you have. You must make sure that they, too, receive or can get the source code. And you must tell them their rights.

Also, for our own protection, we must make certain that everyone finds out that there is no warranty for Ghostscript. If Ghostscript is modified by someone else and passed on, we want its recipients to know that what they have is not what we distributed, so that any problems introduced by others will not reflect on our reputation.

Therefore we (Richard M. Stallman and the Free Software Foundation, Inc.) make the following terms which say what you must do to be allowed to distribute or change Ghostscript.

COPYING POLICIES

1. You may copy and distribute verbatim copies of Ghostscript source code as you receive it, in any medium, provided that you conspicuously and appropriately publish on each copy a valid copyright holder(s) and/or license notice "Copyright (C) 1989 Aladdin Enterprises. All rights reserved. Distributed by Free Software Foundation, Inc." (or with whatever year is appropriate); keep intact the notices on all files that refer to this License Agreement and to the absence of any warranty; and give any other recipients of the Ghostscript program a copy of this License Agreement along with the program. You may charge a distribution fee for the physical act of transferring a copy.

2. You may modify your copy or copies of Ghostscript or any portion of it, and copy and distribute such modifications under the terms of Paragraph 1 above, provided that you also do the following:

a) cause the modified files to carry prominent notices stating that you changed the files and the date of any change; and

b) cause the whole of any work that you distribute or publish, that in whole or in part contains or is a derivative of Ghostscript or any part thereof, to be licensed at no charge to all third parties on terms identical to those contained in this License Agreement (except that you may choose to grant more extensive warranty protection to some or all third parties, at your option).

c) You may charge a distribution fee for the physical act of transferring a copy, and you may at your option offer warranty protection in exchange for a fee.

Mere aggregation of another unrelated program with this program (or its derivative) on a volume of a storage or distribution medium does not bring the other program under the scope of these terms.

3. You may copy and distribute Ghostscript (or a portion or derivative of it, under Paragraph 2) in object code or executable form under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above provided that you also do one of the following:

a) accompany it with the complete corresponding machine-readable source code, which must be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,

b) accompany it with a written offer, valid for at least three years, to give any third party free (except for a nominal shipping charge) a complete machine-readable copy of the corresponding source code, to be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,

c) accompany it with the information you received as to where the corresponding source code may be obtained. (This alternative is allowed only for noncommercial distribution and only if you received the program in object code or executable form alone.)

For an executable file, complete source code means all the source code for all modules it contains; but, as a special exception, it need not include

source code for modules which are standard libraries that accompany the operating system on which the executable file runs.

4. You may not copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer Ghostscript except as expressly provided under this License Agreement. Any attempt otherwise to copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer Ghostscript is void and your rights to use the program under this License agreement shall be automatically terminated. However, parties who have received computer software programs from you with this License Agreement will not have their licenses terminated so long as such parties remain in full compliance.

5. If you wish to incorporate parts of Ghostscript into other free programs whose distribution conditions are different, write to the Free Software Foundation at 675 Mass Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139. We have not yet worked out a simple rule that can be stated here, but we will often permit this. We will be guided by the two goals of preserving the free status of all derivatives of our free software and of promoting the sharing and reuse of software.

Your comments and suggestions about our licensing policies and our software are welcome! Please contact the Free Software Foundation, Inc., 675 Mass Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139, or call (617) 876-3296.

THE ENTIRE RISK AS TO THE QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE OF GHOSTSCRIPT IS WITH YOU. SHOULD GHOSTSCRIPT PROVE DEFECTIVE, YOU ASSUME THE COST OF ALL NECESSARY SERVICING, REPAIR OR CORRECTION.

IN NO EVENT UNLESS REQUIRED BY APPLICABLE LAW WILL RICHARD M. STALLMAN, THE FREE SOFTWARE FOUNDATION, INC., L. PETER DEUTSCH, ALADDIN ENTERPRISES, AND/OR ANY OTHER PARTY WHO MAY MODIFY AND REDISTRIBUTE GHOSTSCRIPT AS PERMITTED ABOVE, BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR DAMAGES, INCLUDING ANY LOST PROFITS, LOST MONIES, OR OTHER SPECIAL, INCIDENTAL OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES ARISING OUT OF THE USE OR INABILITY TO USE (INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO LOSS OF DATA OR DATA BEING RENDERED INACCURATE OR LOSSES SUSTAINED BY THIRD PARTIES OR A FAILURE OF THE PROGRAM TO OPERATE WITH ANY OTHER PROGRAMS) GHOSTSCRIPT, EVEN IF YOU HAVE BEEN ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGES, OR FOR ANY CLAIM BY ANY OTHER PARTY.

libosso

Software: libosso
Version: 2.8-1
File or Package: libosso_2.8-1ubuntu2.tar.gz
OSI Licenses: GPLv2+ w/exception, LGPLv2.1, MIT/X11
Other Licenses: Custom
URL: http://archive.ubuntu.com/ubuntu/pool/universe/libo/libosso/libosso\_2.8-1ubuntu2.tar.gz
Group: Development/Libraries/X11
Description: Libosso is the basic library containing required and helpful functions for maemo applications. One of Libosso's main features is RPC (Remote Procedure Calls) services (as it "wraps" D-Bus). In addition, Libosso provides access to low-level hardware functions, such as turning on (or keeping on) the display, autosaving, state saving and system time. Libosso is a wrapper library for user applications for platform-specific, frequently-used D-Bus services. Thus, it should not contain anything that is not platform-specific -- ideally Libosso should not exist.
Common Usage: Library
Package Size: 6.6 MB
Folders / Files: 137 / 447

Description:	A system-independent interface for user-level packet capture; libpcap and WinPcap provide the packet-capture and filtering engines of many open source and commercial network tools, including protocol analyzers (packet sniffers), network monitors, network intrusion detection systems, traffic-generators and network-testers. Libpcap provides a portable framework for low-level network monitoring. Libpcap can provide network statistics collection, security monitoring and network debugging. Since almost every system vendor provides a different interface for packet capture, the libpcap authors created this system-independent API to ease in porting and to alleviate the need for several system-dependent packet capture modules in each application.

This is an example of how to use libpng to read and write PNG files. The file libpng.txt is much more verbose then this. If you have not read it, do so first. This was designed to be a starting point of an implementation. This is not officially part of libpng, is hereby placed in the public domain, and therefore does not require a copyright notice.

Secret Rabbit Code is released under a dual licensing scheme. Users can choose which of these two licenses they wish to operate under:

The standard GNU General Public License (GPL) as written and published by the Free Software Foundation. The very generous libsamplerate Commercial Use License that can be purchased for a one off payment of $1000 (one thousand) Australian dollars. Any person or organisation wishing to distribute (either privately or publicly) software which uses Secret Rabbit Code must either abide by the GPL or purchase a commercial use license.

The commercial use license allows licensees to use libsamplerate as a statically linked library in proprietary, shareware or other closed source applications. The licensee may use libsamplerate in as many separate products as they choose and sell as many copies of each as they can without paying any further licensing fees for libsamplerate. For more information, please see the commercial use licensing procedure.

COPYRIGHTS AND OTHER DELUSIONS

The BSD ancestor of this file had a standard Regents of the University of California copyright with dates from 1980 to 1993. Some information has been merged in from a terminfo file SCO distributes. It has an obnoxious boilerplate copyright which I'm ignoring because they took so much of the content from the ancestral BSD versions of this file and didn't attribute it, thereby violating the BSD Regents' copyright.

Not that anyone should care. However many valid functions copyrights may serve, putting one on a termcap/terminfo file with hundreds of anonymous contributors makes about as much sense as copyrighting a wall-full of graffiti -- it's legally dubious, ethically bogus, and patently ridiculous.
document version 1.4

This file deliberately has no copyright. It belongs to no one and everyone. If you claim you own it, you will merely succeed in looking like a fool. Use it as you like. Use it at your own risk. Copy and redistribute freely. There are no guarantees anywhere. Svaha!

Theora is derived directly from On2's VP3 codec; Currently the two are nearly identical, varying only in encapsulating decoder tables in the bitstream headers, but Theora will make use of this extra freedom in the future to improve over what is possible with VP3.

If you do anything useful with all or parts of it you need to honor the copyright notices. I would also be interested in knowing about it and, hopefully, be acknowledged. Vorbis is a general purpose audio and music encoding format contemporary to MPEG-4's AAC and TwinVQ, the next generation beyond MPEG audio layer 3. Unlike the MPEG sponsored formats (and other proprietary formats such as RealAudio G2 and Windows' flavor of the month), the Vorbis CODEC specification belongs to the public domain. All the technical details are published and documented, and any software entity may make full use of the format without license fee, royalty or patent concerns.

This package contains: libvorbis, a BSD-style license software implementation of the Vorbis specification by the Xiph.Org Foundation (<http://www.xiph.org/>); libvorbisfile, a BSD-style license convenience library built on Vorbis designed to simplify common uses; libvorbisenc, a BSD-style license library that provides a simple, programmatic encoding setup interface example code making use of libogg, libvorbis, libvorbisfile and libvorbisenc

If Recipient obtains such knowledge after it makes Subject Software available to any other person or entity, Recipient shall take other steps (such as notifying appropriate mailing lists or newsgroups) reasonably calculated to inform those who received the Subject Software that new knowledge has been obtained.

2. License Terms. All distribution of the Subject Software must be made subject to the terms of this License. A copy of this License and the Required Notice must be included in any documentation for Subject Software where Recipient's rights relating to Subject Software and/or any Accompanying Technology are described. Distributions of Subject Software in source code form must also include the Required Notice in every file distributed. In addition, a ReadMe file entitled "Important Legal Notice" must be distributed with each distribution of one or more files that incorporate Subject Software.

That file must be included with distributions made in both source code and executable form. A copy of the License and the Required Notice must be included in that file. Recipient may distribute Accompanying Technology under a license of Recipient's choice, which may contain terms different from this License, provided that (i) Recipient is in compliance with the terms of this License, (ii) such other license terms do not modify or supersede the terms of this License as applicable to the Subject Software, (iii) Recipient hereby indemnifies SGI for any liability incurred by SGI as a result of the distribution of Accompanying Technology or the use of other license terms.

3. Termination. This License and the rights granted hereunder will terminate automatically if Recipient fails to comply with terms herein and fails to cure such breach within 30 days of the breach. Any sublicense to the Subject Software that is properly granted shall survive any termination of this License absent termination by the terms of such sublicense. Provisions which, by their nature, must remain in effect beyond the termination of this License shall survive.

4. Trademark Rights. This License does not grant any rights to use any trade name, trademark or service mark whatsoever. No trade name, trademark or service mark of SGI may be used to endorse or promote products derived from or incorporating any Subject Software without prior written permission of SGI.

5. No Other Rights. No rights or licenses not expressly granted hereunder shall arise by implication, estoppel or otherwise. Title to and ownership of the Original Software at all times remains with SGI. All rights in the Original Software not expressly granted under this License are reserved.

6. Compliance with Laws; Non-Infringement. Recipient shall comply with all applicable laws and regulations in connection with use and distribution of the Subject Software, including but not limited to, all export and import control laws and regulations of the U.S. government and other countries. Recipient may not distribute Subject Software that (i) in any way infringes (directly or contributorily) the rights (including patent, copyright, trade secret, trademark or other intellectual property rights of any kind) of any other person or entity, or (ii) breaches any representation or warranty, express, implied or statutory, which under any applicable law it might be deemed to have been distributed.

7. Claims of Infringement. If Recipient at any time has knowledge of any one or more third party claims that reproduction, modification, use, distribution, import or sale of Subject Software (including particular functionality or code incorporated in Subject Software) infringes the third party's intellectual property rights, Recipient must place in a well-identified web page bearing the title "LEGAL" a description of each such claim and a description of the party making each such claim in sufficient detail that a user of the Subject Software will know whom to contact regarding the claim.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

1.8. "Modifications" means any addition to or deletion from the substance or structure of the Original Code or any previous Modifications. When Covered Code is released as a series of files, a Modification is:

2. License Grant and Restrictions.

2.1. SGI License Grant. Subject to the terms of this License and any third party intellectual property claims, for the duration of intellectual property protections inherent in the Original Code, SGI hereby grants Recipient a worldwide, royalty-free, non-exclusive license, to do the following: (i) under copyrights Licensable by SGI, to reproduce, distribute, create derivative works from, and, to the extent applicable, display and perform the Original Code and/or any Modifications provided by SGI alone and/or as part of a Larger Work; and (ii) under any Licensable Patents, to make, have made, use, sell, offer for sale, import and/or otherwise transfer the Original Code and/or any Modifications provided by SGI.

Recipient accepts the terms and conditions of this License by undertaking any of the aforementioned actions. The patent license shall apply to the Covered Code if, at the time any related Modification is added, such addition of the Modification causes such combination to be covered by the Licensed Patent. The patent license in Section 2.1(ii) shall not apply to any other combinations that include the Modification. No patent license is provided under SGI Patents for infringements of SGI Patents by Modifications not provided by SGI or combinations of Original Code and Modifications not provided by SGI.

2.2. Recipient License Grant. Subject to the terms of this License and any third party intellectual property claims, Recipient hereby grants SGI and any other Recipients a worldwide, royalty-free, non-exclusive license, under any Recipient Patents, to make, have made, use, sell, offer for sale, import and/or otherwise transfer the Original Code and/or any Modifications provided by SGI.

2.3. No License For Hardware Implementations. The licenses granted in Section 2.1 and 2.2 are not applicable to implementation in Hardware of the algorithms embodied in the Original Code or any Modifications provided by SGI.

3. Redistributions.

3.1. Retention of Notice/Copy of License. The Notice set forth in Exhibit A, below, must be conspicuously retained or included in any and all redistributions of Covered Code. For distributions of the Covered Code in source code form, the Notice must appear in every file that can include a text comments field; in executable form, the Notice and a copy of this License must appear in related documentation or collateral where the Recipient's rights relating to Covered Code are described. Any Additional Notice Provisions which actually appears in the Original Code must also be retained or included in any and all redistributions of Covered Code.

3.2. Alternative License. Provided that Recipient is in compliance with the terms of this License, Recipient may, so long as without derogation of any of SGI's rights in and to the Original Code, distribute the source code and/or executable version(s) of Covered Code under (1) this License; (2) a license identical to this License but for only such changes as are necessary in order to clarify Recipient's role as licensor of Modifications; and/or (3) a license of Recipient's choosing, containing terms different from this License, provided that the license terms include this Section 3 and Sections 4, 6, 7, 10, 12, and 13, which terms may not be modified or superseded by any other terms of such license.

If Recipient elects to use any license other than this License, Recipient must make it absolutely clear that any of its terms which differ from this License are offered by Recipient alone, and not by SGI. It is emphasized that this License is a limited license, and, regardless of the license form employed by Recipient in accordance with this Section 3.2, Recipient may relicense only such rights, in Original Code and Modifications by SGI, as it has actually been granted by SGI in this License.

3.3. Indemnity. Recipient hereby agrees to indemnify SGI for any liability incurred by SGI as a result of any such alternative license terms Recipient offers.

4. Termination. This License and the rights granted hereunder will terminate automatically if Recipient breaches any term herein and fails to cure such breach within 30 days thereof. Any sublicense to the Covered Code that is properly granted shall survive any termination of this License, absent termination by the terms of such sublicense. Provisions that, by their nature, must remain in effect beyond the termination of this License, shall survive.

5. No Trademark Or Other Rights. This License does not grant any rights to: (i) any software apart from the Covered Code, nor shall any other rights or licenses not expressly granted hereunder arise by implication, estoppel or otherwise with respect to the Covered Code; (ii) any trade name, trademark or service mark whatsoever, including without limitation any related right for purposes of endorsement or promotion of products derived from the Covered Code, without prior written permission of SGI; or (iii) any title to or ownership of the Original Code, which shall at all times remain with SGI. All rights in the Original Code not expressly granted under this License are reserved.

6. Compliance with Laws; Non-Infringement. There are various worldwide laws, regulations, and executive orders applicable to dispositions of Covered Code, including without limitation export, re-export, and import control laws, regulations, and executive orders, of the U.S. government and other countries, and Recipient is reminded it is obliged to obey such laws, regulations, and executive orders. Recipient may not distribute Covered Code that (i) in any way infringes (directly or contributorily) any intellectual property rights of any kind of any other person or entity or (ii) breaches any representation or warranty, express, implied or statutory, to which, under any applicable law, it might be deemed to have been subject.

7. Claims of Infringement. If Recipient learns of any third party claim that any disposition of Covered Code and/or functionality wholly or partially infringes the third party's intellectual property rights, Recipient will promptly notify SGI of such claim.

8. Versions of the License. SGI may publish revised and/or new versions of the License from time to time, each with a distinguishing version number. Once Covered Code has been published under a particular version of the License, Recipient may, for the duration of the license, continue to use it under the terms of that version, or choose to use such Covered Code under the terms of any subsequent version published by SGI. Subject to the provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of this License, only SGI may modify the terms applicable to Covered Code created under this License.

9. DISCLAIMER OF WARRANTY. COVERED CODE IS PROVIDED "AS IS." ALL EXPRESS AND IMPLIED WARRANTIES AND CONDITIONS ARE DISCLAIMED, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, ANY IMPLIED WARRANTIES AND CONDITIONS OF MERCHANTABILITY, SATISFACTORY QUALITY, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, AND NON-INFRINGEMENT.

SGI ASSUMES NO RISK AS TO THE QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE OF THE SOFTWARE. SHOULD THE SOFTWARE PROVE DEFECTIVE IN ANY RESPECT, SGI ASSUMES NO COST OR LIABILITY FOR SERVICING, REPAIR OR CORRECTION. THIS DISCLAIMER OF WARRANTY IS AN ESSENTIAL PART OF THIS LICENSE. NO USE OF ANY COVERED CODE IS AUTHORIZED HEREUNDER EXCEPT SUBJECT TO THIS DISCLAIMER.

10. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY. UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES NOR LEGAL THEORY, WHETHER TORT (INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, NEGLIGENCE OR STRICT LIABILITY), CONTRACT, OR OTHERWISE, SHALL SGI OR ANY SGI LICENSOR BE LIABLE FOR ANY DIRECT, INDIRECT, SPECIAL, INCIDENTAL, OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES OF ANY CHARACTER INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF GOODWILL, WORK STOPPAGE, LOSS OF DATA, COMPUTER FAILURE OR MALFUNCTION, OR ANY AND ALL OTHER COMMERCIAL DAMAGES OR LOSSES, EVEN IF SUCH PARTY SHALL HAVE BEEN INFORMED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGES. THIS LIMITATION OF LIABILITY SHALL NOT APPLY TO LIABILITY FOR DEATH OR PERSONAL INJURY RESULTING FROM SGI's NEGLIGENCE TO THE EXTENT APPLICABLE LAW PROHIBITS SUCH LIMITATION. SOME JURISDICTIONS DO NOT ALLOW THE EXCLUSION OR LIMITATION OF INCIDENTAL OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES, SO THAT EXCLUSION AND LIMITATION MAY NOT APPLY TO RECIPIENT.

11. Indemnity. Recipient shall be solely responsible for damages arising, directly or indirectly, out of its utilization of rights under this License. Recipient will defend, indemnify and hold harmless Silicon Graphics, Inc. from and against any loss, liability, damages, costs or expenses (including the payment of reasonable attorneys fees) arising out of Recipient's use, modification, reproduction and distribution of the Covered Code or out of any representation or warranty made by Recipient.

Export Requirements - You may not export or re-export this software or any copy or adaptation in violation of any applicable laws or regulations. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, hardware, software, technology or services provided under this license agreement may not be exported, reexported, transferred or downloaded to or within (or to a national resident of) countries under U.S. economic embargo including the following countries: Cuba, Iran, Libya, North Korea, Sudan and Syria. This list is subject to change.

Hardware, software, technology or services may not be exported, reexported, transferred or downloaded to persons or entities listed on the U.S. Department of Commerce Denied Persons List, Entity List of proliferation concern or on any U.S. Treasury Department Designated Nationals exclusion list, or to parties directly or indirectly involved in the development or production of nuclear, chemical, biological weapons or in missile technology programs as specified in the U.S. Export Administration Regulations (15 CFR 744).

By accepting this license agreement you confirm that you are not located in (or a national resident of) any country under U.S. economic embargo, not identified on any U.S. Department of Commerce Denied Persons List, Entity List or Treasury Department Designated Nationals exclusion list, and not directly or indirectly involved in the development or production of nuclear, chemical, biological weapons or in missile technology programs as specified in the U.S. Export Administration Regulations.

Software available on this web site contains cryptography and is therefore subject to US government export control under the U.S. Export Administration Regulations ("EAR"). EAR Part 740.13(e) allows the export and reexport of publicly available encryption source code that is not subject to payment of license fee or royalty payment.

Object code resulting from the compiling of such source code may also be exported and reexported under this provision if publicly available and not subject to a fee or payment other than reasonable and customary fees for reproduction and distribution. This kind of encryption source code and the corresponding object code may be exported or reexported without prior U.S. government export license authorization provided that the U.S. government is notified about the Internet location of the software.

The open source software available on this web site is publicly available without license fee or royalty payment, and all binary software is compiled from the source code. The U.S. government has been notified about this site and the location site for the source code. Therefore, the source code and compiled object code may be downloaded and exported under U.S. export license exception (without a U.S. export license) in accordance with the further restrictions outlined above regarding embargoed countries, restricted persons and restricted end uses.

Local Country Import Requirements - The software you are about to download contains cryptography technology. Some countries regulate the import, use and/or export of certain products with cryptography. The X.org Foundation makes no claims as to the applicability of local country import, use and/or export regulations in relation to the download of this product. If you are located outside the U.S. and Canada you are advised to consult your local country regulations to insure compliance.

This is the copyright holder that gets inserted into the header of the $(DOMAIN).pot file. Set this to the copyright holder of the surrounding package. (Note that the msgstr strings, extracted from the package's sources, belong to the copyright holder of the package.) Translators are expected to transfer the copyright for their translations to this person or entity, or to disclaim their copyright. The empty string stands for the public domain; in this case the translators are expected to disclaim their copyright. COPYRIGHT HOLDER = Linux-PAM Project

This code implements the MD5 message-digest algorithm. The algorithm is due to Ron Rivest. This code was written by Colin Plumb in 1993, no copyright is claimed. This code is in the public domain; do with it what you wish.

Equivalent code is available from RSA Data Security, Inc. This code has been tested against that, and is equivalent, except that you don't need to include two pages of legalese with every copy.

SCTP (Stream Control Transmission Protocol) is a message oriented, reliable transport protocol, with congestion control, support for transparent multi-homing, and multiple ordered streams of messages. RFC2960 defines the core protocol. The IETF SIGTRAN Working Group developed SCTP. The primary architects are Randy Stewart and Qiaobing Xie.

The Kernel Reference is first and foremost an exposition of RFC2960 and related documents. You will find that the comments and variable names tie closely back to the RFC and Internet Drafts. This work was started by a small team of developers at Motorola. Throughout this document, "we" refers to that team. We intend for the meaning of "we" to expand to include the whole development community, all 27 million programmers on the planet. The Kernel Reference has loose origins in the SCTP User Space Reference by Randy Stewart and Qiaobing Xie.

The set of programs and documentation known as "Imbench" are distributed under the Free Software Foundation's General Public License with the following additional restrictions (which override any conflicting restrictions in the GPL):

1. You may not distribute results in any public forum, in any publication, or in any other way if you have modified the benchmarks.
2. You may not distribute the results for a fee of any kind. This includes web sites which generate revenue from advertising.

If you have modifications or enhancements that you wish included in future versions, please mail those to me, Larry McVoy, at lm@bitmover.com.

Rationale for the publication restrictions:
In summary:

a) Lmbench is designed to measure enough of an OS that if you do well in all categories, you've covered latency and bandwidth in networking, disks, file systems, VM systems, and memory systems.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system or board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

b) Multiple times in the past people have wanted to report partial results. Without exception, they were doing so to show a skewed view of whatever it was they were measuring (for example, one OS fit small processes into segments and used the segment register to switch them, getting good results, but did not want to report large process context switches because those didn't look as good).

c) We insist that if you formally report Lmbench results, you have to report all of them and make the raw results file easily available. Reporting all of them means in that same publication, a pointer does not count. Formally, in this context, means in a paper, on a web site, etc., but does not mean the exchange of results between OS developers who are tuning a particular subsystem.

We have a lot of history with benchmarking and feel strongly that there is little to be gained and a lot to be lost if we allowed the results to be published in isolation, without the complete story being told. There has been a lot of discussion about this, with people not liking this restriction, more or less on the freedom principle as far as I can tell. We're not swayed by that, our position is that we are doing the right thing for the OS community and will stick to our guns on this one.

It would be a different matter if there were 3 other competing benchmarking systems out there that did what Lmbench does and didn't have the same reporting rules. There aren't and as long as that is the case, I see no reason to change my mind and lots of reasons not to do so. I'm sorry if I'm a pain in the ass on this topic, but I'm doing the right thing for you and the sooner people realize that the sooner we can get on to real work.

Operating system design is a largely an art of balancing tradeoffs. In many cases improving one part of the system has negative effects on other parts of the system. The art is choosing which parts to optimize and which to not optimize. Just like in computer architecture, you can optimize the common instructions (RISC) or the uncommon instructions (CISC), but in either case there is usually a cost to pay (in RISC uncommon instructions are more expensive than common instructions, and in CISC common instructions are more expensive than required). The art lies in knowing which operations are important and optimizing those while minimizing the impact on the rest of the system.

Since Imbench gives a good overview of many important system features, users may see the performance of the system as a whole, and can see where tradeoffs may have been made. This is the driving force behind the publication restriction: any idiot can optimize certain subsystems while completely destroying overall system performance. If said idiot publishes only the numbers relating to the optimized subsystem, then the costs of the optimization are hidden and readers will mistakenly believe that the optimization is a good idea. By including the publication restriction readers would be able to detect that the optimization improved the subsystem performance while damaging the rest of the system performance and would be able to make an informed decision as to the merits of the optimization.

Note that these restrictions only apply to publications. We intend and encourage Imbench's use during design, development, and tweaking of systems and applications. If you are tuning the linux or BSD TCP stack, then by all means, use the networking benchmarks to evaluate the performance effects of various modifications; Swap results with other developers; use the networking numbers in isolation.

The restrictions only kick in when you go to publish the results. If you sped up the TCP stack by a factor of 2 and want to publish a paper with the various tweaks or algorithms used to accomplish this goal, then you can publish the networking numbers to show the improvement. However, the paper must also include the rest of the standard Imbench numbers to show how your tweaks may (or may not) have impacted the rest of the system. The full set of numbers may be included in an appendix, but they must be included in the paper.

This helps protect the community from adopting flawed technologies based on incomplete data. It also helps protect the community from misleading marketing which tries to sell systems based on partial (skewed) Imbench performance results. We have seen many cases in the past where partial or misleading benchmark results have caused great harm to the community, and we want to ensure that our benchmark is not used to perpetrate further harm and support false or misleading claims.

The set of programs and documentation known as "Imbench" are distributed under the Free Software Foundation's General Public License with the following additional restrictions (which override any conflicting restrictions in the GPL):

1. You may not distribute results in any public forum, in any publication, or in any other way if you have modified the benchmarks.

2. You may not distribute the results for a fee of any kind. This includes web sites which generate revenue from advertising.

If you have modifications or enhancements that you wish included in future versions, please mail those to me, Larry McVoy, at lm@bitmover.com.

Rationale for the publication restrictions:

In summary:

a) LMbench is designed to measure enough of an OS that if you do well in all categories, you've covered latency and bandwidth in networking, disks, file systems, VM systems, and memory systems.

b) Multiple times in the past people have wanted to report partial results. Without exception, they were doing so to show a skewed view of whatever it was they were measuring (for example, one OS fit small processes into segments and used the segment register to switch them, getting good results, but did not want to report large process context switches because those didn't look as good).

c) We insist that if you formally report LMbench results, you have to report all of them and make the raw results file easily available. Reporting all of them means in that same publication, a pointer does not count. Formally, in this context, means in a paper, on a web site, etc., but does not mean the exchange of results between OS developers who are tuning a particular subsystem.

We have a lot of history with benchmarking and feel strongly that there is little to be gained and a lot to be lost if we allowed the results to be published in isolation, without the complete story being told. There has been a lot of discussion about this, with people not liking this restriction, more or less on the freedom principle as far as I can tell. We're not swayed by that, our position is that we are doing the right thing for the OS community and will stick to our guns on this one.

It would be a different matter if there were 3 other competing benchmarking systems out there that did what LMbench does and didn't have the same reporting rules. There aren't and as long as that is the case, I see no reason to change my mind and lots of reasons not to do so. I'm sorry if I'm a pain in the ass on this topic, but I'm doing the right thing for you and the sooner people realize that the sooner we can get on to real work.

Operating system design is a largely an art of balancing tradeoffs. In many cases improving one part of the system has negative effects on other parts of the system. The art is choosing which parts to optimize and which to not optimize. Just like in computer architecture, you can optimize the common instructions (RISC) or the uncommon instructions (CISC), but in either case there is usually a cost to pay (in RISC uncommon instructions are more expensive than common instructions, and in CISC common instructions are more expensive than required). The art lies in knowing which operations are important and optimizing those while minimizing the impact on the rest of the system.

Since Imbench gives a good overview of many important system features, users may see the performance of the system as a whole, and can see where tradeoffs may have been made. This is the driving force behind the publication restriction: any idiot can optimize certain subsystems while completely destroying overall system performance. If said idiot publishes only the numbers relating to the optimized subsystem, then the costs of the optimization are hidden and readers will mistakenly believe that the optimization is a good idea. By including the publication restriction readers would be able to detect that the optimization improved the subsystem performance while damaging the rest of the system performance and would be able to make an informed decision as to the merits of the optimization.

Note that these restrictions only apply to publications. We intend and encourage Imbench's use during design, development, and tweaking of systems and applications. If you are tuning the linux or BSD TCP stack, then by all means, use the networking benchmarks to evaluate the performance effects of various modifications; Swap results with other developers; use the networking numbers in isolation. The restrictions only kick in when you go to publish the results. If you sped up the TCP stack by a factor of 2 and want to publish a paper with the various tweaks or algorithms used to accomplish this goal, then you can publish the networking numbers to show the improvement. However, the paper must also include the rest of the standard Imbench numbers to show how your tweaks may (or may not) have impacted the rest of the system. The full set of numbers may be included in an appendix, but they must be included in the paper.

This helps protect the community from adopting flawed technologies based on incomplete data. It also helps protect the community from misleading marketing which tries to sell systems based on partial (skewed) Imbench performance results. We have seen many cases in the past where partial or misleading benchmark results have caused great harm to the community, and we want to ensure that our benchmark is not used to perpetrate further harm and support false or misleading claims.
